

Discover the magic of Thailand and Vietnam with Aussie Travel Assist. Let us create a personalized and unforgettable tour package or restaurant booking tailored to your tastes, from cultural experiences to hidden gems. Our dedicated team is committed to crafting the perfect escape just for you, ensuring a seamless adventure every step of the way.

Our Team

Gavin Tibbett

Just this year I made the move to Thailand, after just a few months I can honestly say I wish I made this move years ago. A friend of mine, I once worked with in Australia, now living in Thailand, was the reason I took the big step of moving to a new life in Thailand, and I can honestly say it is amazing.

Daunting

Guys do not kid yourself; it can be very daunting arriving in a new country, the airports alone are like small cities, you do not know anyone, you do not know where you are going, not a familiar face in site. This is where we can help you guys. Believe me these cities are huge and stop for no one, you can feel very isolated, overwhelmed, helpless, I have heard stories of men who caught the first flight home simply because of the feeling of helplessness, nothing like they had pictured in their head, limited signage in english, no phone upon arrival unless you have an eSim. It can be a lot to deal with and this is where we can help. Other areas that will be very different from anything you have experience is the traffic, the traffic here is very different from anything you have experienced back in Australia. After just a few months of living in Thailand my friend of many years mentioned how great it would be to help other Aussie familys have an amazing holiday abroad. This is when we decided to look at ways to help Aussies that are considering a getaway in another country.

Kevin Hudson

After working in the same industry for almost 45 years I took an early retirement and moved to Ho Chi Minh City (Saigon) Vietnam. During my 71/2 years there I did contract work for an Australian and Japanese company associated with the beef industry. The rest of the time was spent touring around Vietnam on one of my Harley motorcycles. This gave me a great insite into what Vietnam has to offer the aussie travellers. Also I can not say enough for the Dental and Medical facilities that Vietnam has to offer. During my time in Vietnam I discovered I had Lymphoma Cancer and if not for the wonderful doctors and staff at FV Hospital in Saigon I would not be here now to tell my story. I have now been Cancer free for over 4 years. So to make the most of what I have experienced in Vietnam my long time friend from Australia and I decided it was time to assist aussie travellers to enjoy this wonderful country also.

Believe me these cities are huge and stop for no one, you can feel very isolated, overwhelmed, helpless, nothing like they had pictured in their head, limited signage in english, no phone upon arrival unless you have an eSim. It can be a lot to deal with and this is where we can help. Other areas that will be very different from anything you have experience is the traffic, the traffic here is very different from anything you have experienced back in Australia. To give you some idea Saigon has around 81/2 million scooters for the estimated 10 million residents. The first thing you will notice upon leaving the airport is the amount of motorcycles on the roads compared to cars.